InfoPath status in a nutshell There will be no InfoPath 2016, but InfoPath 2013 is filling that role. Everyone using InfoPath is concerned about finding an InfoPath replacement To help with planning, we update this post with the all latest information we can find about the changing retirement status of InfoPath 2013. Microsoft has provided guidance that, but with caveats: feature parity with InfoPath is not a goal, and InfoPath will still be preferred for some scenarios involving offline work and rich XML documents, for example. Office 365 will support InfoPath browser forms in SharePoint Online *. SharePoint 2016 works with InfoPath 2013, which will be supported until 2026 as if it were part of Office 2016.
